

peel weekly

edition #134 | September 2019

Monday night is cooking night in Peel. Matron Cole takes over a number of students to the food technology rooms on a Monday evening after prep, and each week they have a go at cooking up some new treats! This week it was time to have a go at making cheese twists, and my, my don't they look scrummy! Bake Off here we come.

Alex, Year 9, had an interesting weekend not so long ago down in Cambridge. He tells us more now...

"On Saturday my mum and I went down to Cambridge for a Zoology Alumni Open Day. We walked into the city to the zoology department and managed to catch the end of a tour around the museum. They have fantastic exhibits there; some of Darwin's finches, barnacles and lots of beetles he collected, along with giant land sloth skeletons and other awesome beasts. We then went onto a lecture by Nick Davies (a famous journalist and documentary maker, who also happens to have taught my mum), and then one by Tom Mustill. Both were really, really interesting. The day moved on then for a lab tour in the department, one of which was about invasive river species."

A very enriching day out, thanks Alex!

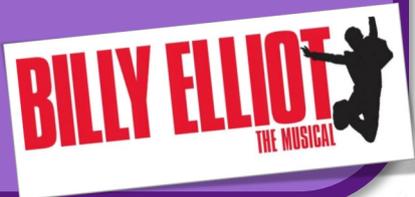

More news and updates on boarding life now. On the first weekend after exeat, Peel will be very busy indeed. On Saturday night, we are hosting the rest of the student boarding community for a Peel Pub Quiz, before a Big Weekender of paintballing on the Sunday. This is all in addition to regular weekend activities of football, swimming, golf, basketball and arts and crafts - plenty to keep students busy on a weekend!

Do you have social plans next week? If not, why not pop into The Forum in Norwich between Tuesday morning and Thursday night to see the College's best GCSE and A-Level Fine Art, photography and textiles exam works on display in an exhibit this year entitled, 'Perspectives'. Not to be missed.

After open auditions and call backs last week, the cast list for the College's 2020 musical, Billy Elliott, was announced 2 days ago. Well done to all students of course, but an especially big round of applause for all of our Peel students who feature. New Year 7 student Leila will play Debbie, Somto N is amongst the miners, Imogen will portray a panellist, Gloria features in the dancers group, Annie, Alabama and Zaina will make for quite intimidating police officers, and finally Phoebe H and Olivia LGC make up the female ensemble. We'll give you an update soon on how rehearsals are progressing, and then when tickets become available. Once more, well done Peel!

Another fabulous week in Peel gets capped off with another run down of our fantastic students and their amassed house points. Our student of the week is Rodrigo (Year 9) who managed to amass a massive +50 points just to himself!

However, slow and steady seems to win the race, and it is in fact a student yet to be praised this year, Alisha (year 8), who is currently winning the Peel points race on +1090. Well done Alisha.
